Honestly, that's not too hard to believe. This seems too easy to take Washington, but my guess is the public will be all over Buffalo. WashingtonRTG (MAX 10) BillsRTG (MAX 10) Taylor Heinicke(5.6) Josh Allen(8.2) Antonio Gibson(7.9) Devin Singletary(6.4) J.D. If neither of those are options, or if you're on a mobile device, you can scroll by game. ColtsRTG (MAX 10) TitansRTG (MAX 10) Carson Wentz(4.65) Ryan Tannehill(6.6) Jonathan Taylor(8.7) Derrick Henry(9.7) Nyheim Hines(5.1) A.J. FalconsRTG (MAX 10) GiantsRTG (MAX 10) Matt Ryan(6.5) Daniel Jones(6.9) Mike Davis(6.3) Saquon Barkley(8.3) Calvin Ridley(8.1) Sterling Shepard(6.8) Cordarrelle Patterson(4.9) Kenny Golladay(6.9) Kyle Pitts(7.1) Evan Engram(6.15) Falcons DST(3.1) Giants DST(6.3) The line wants us to believe: Jacksonville is competitive. This is an absolute trap line -- why else would the oddsmakers give you points with Aaron Rodgers?! The Packers deserve credit for bouncing back against Detroit, but their defense still has some holes in it and the 49ers have proven to be cagey through two games. Apparently, the oddsmakers think differently as they're begging you to take the Cardinals. But under the surface of a 2-0 Raiders team is a squad with a depleted O-line, a still-not-good defense, a suspect run game and, most importantly, a hurt quarterback. It really feels like the oddsmakers are counting on the public to take Dallas on the strength of their Week 2 win, which was pretty fortunate given the Chargers' mistakes. Detroit has made plenty of mistakes but it has not played scared and has fought hard in every game. It will be fascinating to see how the Rams try to get after Tom Brady -- I wonder if they'll try to blitz him like the Saints did last year. The line wants us to believe: Carolina's just not quite good enough to score another blowout. PackersRTG (MAX 10) 49ersRTG (MAX 10) Aaron Rodgers(8.8) Jimmy Garoppolo(6.4) Aaron Jones(9.6) Trey Sermon(6.5) A.J. Dillon(3.9) Trenton Cannon(3.7) Davante Adams(9.6) Deebo Samuel(6.7) Marquez Valdes-Scantling(1.8) Brandon Aiyuk(3.2) Robert Tonyan(6.1) George Kittle(7.5) Packers DST(5.5) 49ers DST(5.1) The line wants us to believe: The Vikings really are an explosive offense. The Falcons were within three points on the road at Tampa Bay last week when Matt Ryan threw two pick-sixes. That was good to see, but the reality is that the Falcons defense is just too weak. I'm not convinced the Texans will score more than 14, and I am convinced the Panthers can get more than 22. PanthersRTG (MAX 10) TexansRTG (MAX 10) Sam Darnold(6.1) Davis Mills(3.2) Christian McCaffrey(9.9) Mark Ingram(5.0) D.J. Moore(7.2) Phillip Lindsay(4.5) Robby Anderson(6.0) Brandin Cooks(6.5) Terrace Marshall Jr.(3.9) Texans DST(3.3) Panthers DST(8.6) The line wants us to believe: Atlanta's hopeless. Josh Allen has been a mistake-prone passer through two weeks and will be challenged here. Expect a wake-up call for the Steelers here -- the Bengals have played hard through most of their first two games and are catching Pittsburgh with a depleted front seven and an ailing Ben Roethlisberger playing behind a bad offensive line. Visit SportsLine now to get Week 3 rankings for every position, plus see which QB is going to come out of nowhere to crack the top 10, all from the model that has out-performed experts big-time. The reality is that the Ravens have played two close, competitive games where fumbles basically determined the winner. And which surprising quarterback could lead you to victory? Untimely drops by their top three receivers and really lame penalties have robbed them of at least four touchdowns this season. The Jaguars have lost both games by at least 10 points -- why expect anything different now? Cincinnati's front was able to pressure the Bears a decent amount last week (three sacks). The oddsmakers may have devised a terrific trap here, but the hunch is the Titans will pull away late. This is a spot for them to keep up with the Ravens. It's interesting that Vegas won by six against Baltimore and nine against Pittsburgh but are only getting 3.5 here. The only concern is that the Broncos will do what it takes to win and not necessarily annihilate an opponent, and Zach Wilson has shown some positives through two weeks. Stick with the home team. This is a good week to keep up with their act together against a Chiefs squad Justin Herbert nearly beat in his first NFL game. Maybe they're laying the biggest trap of the season for bettors, but the fact is there are no compelling reasons to believe Jacksonville is close to being a good team on either side of the ball. CardinalsRTG (MAX 10) Jaguars RTG (MAX 10) Tyler Murray(9.7) Trevor Lawrence(6.2) Chase Edmonds(6.9) James Robinson(6.35) James Conner(5.9) Marvin Jones(6.1) DeAndre Hopkins(9.4) J. Clark(5.5) Rondale Moore(6.2) Laviska Shenault Jr.(3.7) Christian Kirk(4.8) Jaguars DST(1.2) A.J. Green(3.4) Cardinals DST(8.0) The line wants us to believe: L.A.'s mistake-filled ways will continue. RavensRTG (MAX 10) LionsRTG (MAX 10) Lamar Jackson(9.0) Jared Goff(6.0) Ty'Son Williams(8.2) D'Andre Swift(7.6) Latavius Murray(5.5) Jamaal Williams(6.0) Marquise Brown(7.15) Quintez Cephus(4.7) Sammy Watkins(4.6) T.J. Hockenson(8.2) Mark Andrews(7.0) Lions DST(2.0) Ravens DST(7.6) The line wants us to believe: Even with their injuries, the Steelers are a better team. Expect the Bolts to keep it tight. ChargersRTG (MAX 10) ChiefsRTG (MAX 10) Justin Herbert(8.1) Patrick Mahomes(9.4) Austin Ekeler(9.2) Clyde Edwards-Helaire(6.6) Keenan Allen(8.7) Darrel Williams(5.2) Mike Williams(7.9) Tyreek Hill(9.7) Jared Cook(6.3) Mecole Hardman(4.5) Chargers DST(4.3) Demarcus Robinson(2.6) Travis Kelce(9.3) Chiefs DST(4.5) The line wants us to believe: The Lions are a bad team. Now he has better coaching, plus the Chiefs haven't looked like a team that could blow out anybody thus far. The Bears nearly blew a 17-point lead with under 7 minutes to play last week, but they also had a pair of dropped touchdowns including an improbable one from Allen Robinson. It has allowed 32-plus points in consecutive games and is now set to battle a rested Giants offense that should load up Saquon Barkley with plenty of touches. Every relevant player for Week 2 is here, so if a player isn't listed, don't start him. But rookie Davis Mills will have just a few precious days of practice before making his first NFL start against a defense that has a league-high 10 sacks. I'd still chance it with Denver. JetsRTG (MAX 10) BroncosRTG (MAX 10) Zach Wilson(3.0) Teddy Bridgewater(6.3) Michael Carter(5.4) Melvin Gordon(7.1) Corey Davis(4.9) Javonte Williams(7.0) Braxton Berrios(3.1) Courtland Sutton(7.6) Elijah Moore(2.3) Tim Patrick(5.4) Jets DST(2.4) K.J. Hamler(3.8) Noah Fant(7.3) Broncos DST(10.0) The line wants us to believe: This will be a close, fun, high-scoring game. Going against Brady has always been a dangerous endeavor but the Rams should have enough on both sides of the ball to take him down. BuccaneersRTG (MAX 10) RamsRTG (MAX 10) Tom Brady(8.4) Matthew Stafford(8.5) Leonard Fournette(6.7) Sony Michel(5.6) Chris Godwin(7.35) Cooper Kupp(9.2) Mike Evans(7.4) Robert Woods(8.2) Rob Gronkowski(7.7) Van Jefferson(2.7) Buccaneers DST(5.9) DeSean Jackson(1.7) Tyler Higbee(6.2) Rams DST(6.7) The line wants us to believe: The Packers' win over the Lions means nothing. It's the scariest sentence I'll type today: The Giants should find a way to win. The oddsmakers knew they'd have to give the Jets a lot of points -- I'm surprised it's only 10.5. They might have gotten away with more because no one really wants to take the Jets even with a bunch of points. Don't be shocked if the Bengals find a way to win outright. BengalsRTG (MAX 10) SteelersRTG (MAX 10) Joe Burrow(6.15) Ben Roethlisberger(5.4) Joe Mixon(8.4) Najee Harris(7.8) Ja'Marr Chase(7.5) JuJu Smith-Schuster(6.3) Tee Higgins(0.0) Chase Claypool(7.1) Tyler Boyd(5.75) Pat Freiermuth(3.9) Bengals DST(6.1) Steelers DST(6.0) The line wants us to believe: Chicago isn't as good as last week suggests. The oddsmakers seemingly knew they could get away with bloating the line because people would take the Ravens no matter what. The former will be easier to do than the latter -- Tennessee is league-average in sacks and has the sixth-lowest pressure rate at 14.1%. In the 20 games Kevin Stefanski has coached, the Browns have won by seven-plus points just six times. Here's how to approach every play for Week 3 in PPR leagues -- you can find our non-PPR cheat sheet here. Cleveland should win, but the Bears should keep it close. BearsRTG (MAX 10) BrownsRTG (MAX 10) Justin Fields(6.8) Baker Mayfield(5.8) David Montgomery(8.5) Nick Chubb(9.5) Allen Robinson(7.7) Kareem Hunt(7.5) Darnell Mooney(6.4) Odell Beckham(5.9) Cole Kmet(4.8) Rashard Higgins(4.4) Bears DST(5.3) Donovan Peoples-Jones(2.8) Austin Hooper(5.9) Browns DST(6.8) The line wants us to believe: Even with a beat-up Carson Wentz, the Colts aren't a pushover. Indy has to hit the exact of protecting Wentz and stopping Derrick Henry all game long. Ready to get off on the right foot? Philadelphia is a better squad than what they showed against the 49ers, but the loss of pass rusher Graham on defense is going to hurt all year. They've played two close games against two mistake-prone teams. What might be harder to believe is that Sean Payton's offense won't find clever ways to keep this game close. If you're still unsure, just send a note on Twitter (@daverichard) and I'll give it a look, time permitting. This will also be the Saints' third straight game away from New Orleans. SaintsRTG (MAX 10) PatriotsRTG (MAX 10) James Winston(4.4) Mac Jones(4.7) Javon Kamara(9.4) James White(6.1) Marquez Callaway(2.3) Damien Harris(7.7) Juwan Johnson(5.0) Jakobi Meyers(3.3) Saints DST(6.4) Nelson Agholor(4.0) Jonnu Smith(6.0) Hunter Henry(4.2) Patriots DST(7.0) The line wants us to believe: Buffalo is a dominant NFL team. Both teams sport quality defenses, but it's the Saints that might get tested more so than the Pats, who figure to try controlling the clock in an effort to win. The Bills might get there, but they're not there yet. Chicago's actually a more dangerous team with Justin Fields under center since he will challenge downfield more than Andy Dalton. To find a specific player, use your search function -- CTRL-F on PCs and Command-F on Macs. The higher the number next to a player's name, the more confident you should be to start him. Washington was gifted a win last week, and while they haven't shown enough to make anyone believe they could win at Buffalo, they also haven't shown anything to suggest they could be blown out. Kirk Cousins has looked sharp through two weeks but the Vikings were stuck at 24 points in an overtime loss in Week 1 and only topped 30 points last week thanks to a pick-six. It absolutely feels like the oddsmakers want you to take them, so don't. But Henry's put up over 100 yards in three straight against the Colts, two of which were convincing Tennessee wins. Can't say the same of Seattle, who has posted at least 28 points in each game so far. SeahawksRTG (MAX 10) VikingsRTG (MAX 10) Russell Wilson(9.5) Kirk Cousins(7.6) Chris Carson(9.3) Dalvin Cook(9.8) Tyler Lockett(9.5) Justin Jefferson(9.3) DK Metcalf(8.6) Adam Thielen(8.8) Freddie Swain(2.2) K.J. Osborn(5.1) Gerald Everett(3.8) Tyler Conklin(3.6) Seahawks DST(4.7) Vikings DST(3.5) The line wants us to believe: What happened to these teams in Week 1 were illusions. The Rams haven't been tested by a prolific offense yet, and the Bucs haven't taken on a challenging defense yet. Maybe they think this is a trap game for Arizona since they play the Rams in Week 4. My guess is the oddsmakers aren't convinced the Panthers can match their implied point total of 25.5 and think they'll win by one score or less. The Lineup Cheat Sheet combines Fantasy analysis and game-flow predictions with a confidence scale to give you a definitive answer on who to start in your leagues. It's pretty simple: The scale runs from 1-10. If the Cowboys stick with their run game, they'll cover this spread. EaglesRTG (MAX 10) CowboysRTG (MAX 10) Dak Prescott(8.7) Miles Sanders(7.4) Ezekiel Elliott(8.55) Kenneth Gainwell(4.8) Tony Pollard(6.4) DeVonta Smith(7.0) CeeDee Lamb(8.4) Jalen Renner(5.0) Amari Cooper(8.3) Quez Watkins(4.3) Ced Wilson(1.8) Dallas Goedert(6.4) Blake Jarwin(3.8) Eagles DST(3.9) Cowboys DST(2.9) So who should you start and sit this week? Their implied total of 26.75 points seems a tad too high. The numbers are not a projection, just a confidence score to help you pick who to start. The Dolphins defense should find a way to keep the game close if not win outright.
